Worldwide Cancer Epidemic

1956

Society is in uproar about the widespread of cancer. It seems unstoppable, and a cause that cannot be fought with science. Everyone knows someone with skin cancer. Everyday people such as educators, parents, and even kids. This epidemic has to be stopped, but how did this happen in the first place? People are quick to point fingers at the government, but the truth lies behind the layers of skin. According to scientist Barack Obama, "skin cancer has developed into human DNA, after long years of not protecting ourselves from the sun's rays. The damage is almost irreversible. The generations to come will be born into skin cancer, more than ever before." While this may be true, how is society to know who has skin cancer and who doesn't? What happens if one has skin cancer? Is it curable? Questions roam throughout the minds of everyday citizens. It seems all are waiting on an answer that may never come.

SCIENTIFIC PREDICTIONS

Word scientist, Mitt Romney, now claims that this epidemic is larger than anyone wants to believe. He told ABC News that, "Anyone born before the year 1970 has skin cancer 9 times out of 10. Anyone living today, but born before 1970 has a decent twenty years of extreme exposure to the sun." A shocking reality for the oldest generation of the world. The records show that the elderly are dying off the fastest. Research has reasons to believe skin cancer is the answer.

Daily Motion Pictures interviewed Ms. Johnson, an elderly woman fighting for her life with skin cancer. She says, "All my life I've never heard such foolishness. How could the skin I'm in dislike me?" A local discussion at The Rosewood Gardens Elderly Home had a brief discussion about the predictions of the future. Staff broke out in tears, trying to compose a symphony that was really a cry for help. No one knew what to do or say. The truth was no longer rumor. It was a sad day for many, and the world is left in a frenzy. "What is left to do but die?" Ms. Johnson wailed shortly after, breaking the silence that was hushed upon the room.

Local science officials tell the public not to worry, and that the epidemic can be solved with sunscreen, but M.D. Obama disagrees, stating that, "Skin cancer is an epidemic that is now embedded into human DNA, and there is no reversing the strands that were bonded to create the babies of all living generations. Those without skin cancer at the moment will soon develop it. Hiding in your home will not stop this disease from controlling the world. I'm sorry to say this, but we're not going to make it past the year 2000 A.D." Many say, "believe what you want, but the world must not end." Hold on closely to friends and family, before skin cancer holds the grip tighter.
