

A small bird, possibly a cardinal, is perched on a thin, light-colored branch. The bird has a greyish-brown head with a prominent crest, a black beak, and a dark eye. Its body is primarily light-colored with some darker feathers on its wings and tail. The background is a soft, out-of-focus natural setting with more branches and a warm, golden light.

*“A bird doesn't sing
because it has an answer,
it sings because it has a song.”*

~ Maya Angelou

