- When I first saw this look it had really inspired me because it has the whole rainbow. So I was thinking I could do a similar look to this and I could do it on myself. I feel like this look would round out all the looks and it would also be a way for me to have my own face as part of the project. I want to show the kind of pride that I have and feel like this look would get that across and it just seems like a fun look to do. I would also consider this look to be very editorial.

- Seeing this look, I was really inspired by it to add to my rainbow theme and have it be my purple look. I might want to make some changes to this though to make fit into the editorial aspect. I was thinking of having the lid have gloss on it and the have lips be like a pastel purple. I think that would make the look more editorial. I feel like this shows like the peace within the color of purple. It's simple but yet is very interesting.

- A big part of my photoshoot is that I want is to have a sort of editorial makeup look to it. I have never done editorial type of makeup and it's something I want to try out. When it comes to editorial makeup you have to be careful how you apply the makeup, how you put all together and all that because it can sometimes look weird on camera. This video is showing me how to do that application, where the makeup should be placed depending on the person. I want to make sure that the skin is looking like it's glowing, not like it's oily because there is a difference.

- I want my photoshoot to have a rainbow theme and this is my inspiration for my blue look. For me, editorial looks are makeup looks that show a different side of makeup. This is something that wouldn't be worn by someone on a day by day, therefore making it editorial. This image helps get some inspiration of what I would want to do with my blue look. Since blue can be related to like confidence and intelligence I wanted something sharp (sharp mind) and this look really represents blue well. I also might want to play around with this look about, maybe have the lines go down?

- Seeing as I am doing a photoshoot, I want to know how to use a camera when it comes to taking it. I have an understanding of using a camera to make videos but not really as much when it comes to using it take photos. This source is a video and it will help me understand what kind of camera body to use, what lens I have to use, and it will help me with how to edit my photos so they can come out as beautiful as possible. This person has a good experience when it comes to doing model shots and I have seen their pictures to prove so I trust the advice she gives in this video.

- I want to have my photoshoot outside therefore I need to know how to do photoshoots outside. This video will help me with having a successful photo shoot outside. Some things I learned are is that you won't put your model's back against the sun in order to get a golden hour look if that is what I want. I have to check my models for hair ties, rings, bracelets before shooting because I wouldn't want to spend my time retouching those things since they won't matter. I want to make sure to always do some test shoots because I want to see how the setting is working and how to look at the focus area.

- This look is very bright and beautiful and something that I will love to have as part of my photoshoot. I think it will be fun to kind of have the yellow as a blush moment. It also has the glossy eye which is something I know I don't want to overdue but it's very editorial and I want to have my chance to try it out as much as possible.

- I wanted to use Pat McGrath as source because this is a company that is very well known within the makeup community to have beautiful makeup products and have the most beautiful photoshoots. They always know how to make their models shines and have a healthy glow and their makeups look are very editorial so PatMcGrath is kind of the goal I am achieving for this project.

- Not only did the makeup inspire me but also the way this picture was taken inspired me. I wanna try and take some photos like this because overall it really shows me editorial. The way the light is hitting all the right places along with the glossy red eyeshadow. It's really beautiful and I want to be able to look at this picture and recreate it because to me is the definition of editorial and a makeup look I need to try out to really step outside my makeup box.

- At first, I didn't think I would be able to learn more than the video about editorial makeup didn't already show me but I actually got some good tips from it along with a good green makeup look that I needed to fit in with my rainbow theme. I also want to try different glossy looks this look caught my attention because of that as well. I was showed how to really give the eye a glossy look, you just have to the right tools and makeup items in order to achieve the look.
